

Vanessa Boulard-Patterson

Honours Bachelor of Creative Writing & Publishing, Class of 2021

A Swamp like Shrek's

Wind that carries the heavy, sporadic breeze
Through webs of a spider
And a legion of blades of grass
Each one a monumental infrastructure
To a microscopic multi legged creature

A swarm of soot specks dance
As the scales of fish perform a light show
All the while an acapella of crickets
Harmonizes with the orchestra of mucus lined toads

Trees impose over the water's edge
For life that needs a rest
Their mud covered roots creating
Winding cavers under water
A safe home
for the most deformed creatures

Yet delicately graceful white water lilies
Find their way out of the sinking guck
To bathe their petals in honeysuckle warmth
Surrounded by the world's most hodgepodge greens